Welcome back

I hope everyone enjoyed the jubilee celebrations and the extended bank holiday weekend.

We are now in the final half term of the year and the weeks are disappearing quickly. It will be a very busy half term so a letter will be coming out with key dates for this half term to let you all know what is happening and when.

Best wishes
Joanne Clayton
(Head of Primary)

Attendance

This week we launched our new attendance rewards and a link has been sent out to you all to a letter which identifies what these are. Sadly we have not seen an improvement in attendance and on Friday primary attendance was only 91%.

There are a significant number of children that have regular days off school without a valid reason. This is having a huge impact on their learning.

Each week the class attendance will be reported in this newsletter.

First Story

Appleton Academy has been involved in the First Story project for 8 years and we are the only primary school in England to be part of this.

First Story runs in Year 6 and enables a number of children to develop their writing skills and then have their work published at the end of the project.

We held our launch of the book this week and all the children involved shared their writing with family members who were invited to join them.

Many thanks to Gill Parr for organizing the event and to all parents who came and supported their child. It was a fabulous event!
